Christina Stephanos brings a powerful and multifaceted professional perspective to her practice: in addition to her law degree, she earned a diploma in Special Education, certificates in both Reading and Elementary Education and taught Language Arts and Special Education for six years.

Prior to joining the firm, she was a staff attorney for the Defender Association of Philadelphia, Child Advocacy Unit and represented abused and neglected children in dependency proceedings, including contested adjudicatory, child abuse, and termination of parental rights hearings. She also advocated for clients in education conflicts while with the unit.

Her professional background also includes work as an assistant district attorney in the Bucks County District Attorney's Office, where she prosecuted pre-assigned criminal cases and assisted with narcotics investigations and prosecutions.
